BERT ABBEY'S GOOD WORK.

PITCHED GREAT BALL AND LEADS THE TEAM IN BATTING.

The Game Swung in the Balance is the Eighth and Both Pitchers Were at the Pivotal Point-General Baseball News.

An excellent demonstration of the un certainty of baseball was given at Exposition park yesterday afternoon, with the Blues in the role of cent to the park pro-ared to adopt the

"roasting" the home team by "rooting" for the visitors. But their hopes were raised and their loyalty aroused to a flaming pitch in the first inning by "Pat" McVicker singling out a high thrown ball and driving it over the right field fence to the north of the sign with the unpronounceable hieroglyphies. It was one of the longest hits ever made on the grounds. The ball was one of the swiftest of the melley of inshoots and outshoots propelled from "Jot" Goar's thick right arm, and when it collided with the bat there was a cheerful resonant swat. And then the ball rose gently and gracefully in the pir and winged its flight for the hemisphere beyond the gently and gracefully in the sir and winged its flight for the hemisphere beyond the walls. Its course was gradually upward, and strength seemed to come to it as it passed high above the heads of the wondering fielders. On and on flew the ball. It passed above the fence, dipped downward and forty feet beyond touched the roof of the long stable, rebounded into the air and rolled and tossed toward the roles followed regarded its momentthe roof of the long stable, rebounded into the air and roiled and tossed toward the ridge, failered, regained its momentum and with a mighty effort scaled the ridge and passed from the vision of the thousand or more screaming, shouting fans, McVicker had almost reached third base before the sphere made its exit.

"Jot" Goar pitched a beautiful game for the Hoosiers, but there was heavy seams in his support. He issued four passes to first, but, for a wonder, not a one of them materialized at the plate in runs. Bert Abbey was at his best, and scattered a miscellaneous assortment of balls over the plate that kept the visitors busy searching for good ones. He did not give a base on balls, and if he had used his head a little more the Hoosiers would have been beaten by a still greater margin, instead of by a nose. Four of the opposition runs were made after two men were out. In the fourth Abbey had two strikes and two balls on Eustace, and deliberately threw him an easy straight hall, in the hope of catch-

PENNSYLVANIA IS BEATEN.

Annapolis Naval Academy Crew Wins the Boat Race by Seven Lengths.

Annapolis, Md., May 39.-Every cadet in the naval scademy feels like an admiral to-day because the "cadet" crew defeated "Pennsylvania" in a two-mile race, cross ing the line seven lengths ahead of the Quakers, in 13 minutes and 47 seconds. The ong the line seven lengths ahead of the Quakers, in 13 minutes and 45 seconds. The water was rough and the time is considered very good under the circumstances.

Because of rough water, it was 6.23 p. m. when the pistol was fired from the judgest boat, and the race was on. Both crews took the water at about the same time, pulling a long, steady stroke, but before 100 yards had been traversed Pennsylvania's yaung men found the water too rough for their liking, and several good, old-fashiosed "crubs" were caught by the collections. The "cadets," on the contrary, never missed a stroke, and soon had the nose of their craft in advance. "Pennsy" was pulling at the rate of thirty-four strokes to the minute and the "middles" at thirty-three, both coxwains holding their boats becoming steadler with each stroke. The men in the mavy boat were the stronger, however, and at the end of the first infi mile were a length abead. From this time on it was a procession, with the Quakers bringing up the rear.

A Former Manager of the Lanky Australian Tells of His Confidence and Suspicion.

Fred M. Bishop, a dispenser of lemonade and other invigorating refreshments in St. Louis, was manager of Robert Fitzsimmons with George R. Clark, after Fitz won his laurels by whipping Jack Dempsey. Hishop and Clark organized a vaudeville company and engaged Fitz for a period of sixteen weeks to star in a boxing bout.

company and engaged Fitz for a period of sixteen weeks to star in a boxing bout.

"Fitz was a funny fellow," said Mr. Bishop. "When he received his first week's salary of $500 he sat in a sectioned corner and counted it over in his hat and then handed part of it back for us to keep for him. He went out and purchased a plug hat about two sizes too large for him and of the vintage of 76. He came back to the office and demanded his money again, and, after counting it over, handed it back for us to keep for him again.

"Just about the time his contract with us was to expire, he was matched with Jim Hall, before Frank Shaw's Twin City Athetic Club, in St. Fiall. We were showing in Chicago, and Parson Davies had Hall in his string of fighters then. We agreed to let Fitz box with Abe Congle four rounds. Some one told Fitz that Congle was a dangerous man, and he concluded that it was a job to injure him so he would be in no condition to fight Hall. It required a lot of persuasion to get Fitz to go on with Congle, and he demanded that Congle 'go easy. This was agreed to. Fitz had a sore lip and Abe roaked him on his speaking apparatus a couple of times, making Bob angry. In that second round he dein not come to for a half hour.

"I regarded Fitz as the best man in the business after his fight with Dempsey, and have lancked him in all his fights since then. Should he and Corbeit meet again, I predict Fitz will win in ten rounds."

LAST OF THE HORSE SALE. Bruce, a Handsome Cleveland Bay,

Bruce, a Handsome Cleveland Bay,

Brings the Top Price on the Last Day.

The special sale of high class horses at the Grand Avenue horse and mules marker closed yesterday. The attendance was fair, though not so large as the previous days, the best offerings having been disposed of: it being the last day of the west and morning rains, yet enough remained to make the last day of the sale a success, as well as the previous ones. After the general consignments were sold, J. C. Williams, of Salina, Kass, sold 20 Shetland ponies at prices ranging from $25 to Ed. They were in poor condition or would have brought more money. Most of them were taken by John Kelley, of Memphis, Tenn. As a whole the sale resulted most satisfactority and the prices paid indicate a decided revival in the market fof good horses, Yesterday's sales were.
